The Illuminator William Henry

This book is primarily about the "supreme initiate" of Jesus, Mary Magdalene: one of the most mysterious of all literary figures. Said to be a prophetess who 'know the All', a priestess of Isis and Ishtar, a "holy harlot", who seduced men from the Eastern and Western world (including a messiah), a shining example of conversion from "sin", a mother of future kings, and a performer, she's as alluring as the "mare of stallions" the Egyptians' enemies set loose in war to drive the stallions wild. The source of her power to captivate is her refusal to be put in a box: whether it be an alabaster box, a prostitute box, a sinner box, a Christian box, a box of Gospels, or a goddess box. So in this book we will search for Mary Magdalene (MAG-duh-luhn, MAG-duh-leen) outside the box. --- excerpt from book's first page
