This textbook will serve as a foundational teaching text for undergraduate nursing students in Canada. Like most fundamentals texts, this text will include such topics as historical aspects of nursing in Canada, teaching and learning, nursing skills, communication, medication administration, patient safety, nursing research, cultural safety, developmental needs, and critical thinking. Unlike other textbooks, however, it will approach nursing in Canada from a variety of perspectives, embracing the reality that nursing students and nurses face on a daily basis. Moreover, it will address both the science and the art of contemporary nursing from a Canadian perspective.
