Diseases of VEGETABLE CROPS

Diseases of Vegetable Crops is relatively new but our forefathers were aware of the diseases of the vegetable crops. Over 30,000 plant diseases are recorded from different countries of which about 5,000 are present in India. In 1980 it was estimated that the annual loss due to plant diseases in United States of America was about four billion dollars. While no overall estimation of the loss caused by the diseases in India has seen it probably is even more in USA, considering that the quantum of preventive measures taken to prevent our crops from the diseases is not even one tenth of that in USA. It can be said that almost every economic vegetable crops cultivated in India is infected by at least one disease, some are plagued by scores of diseases. For example, Virus diseases of vegetables and late blight and ring rot of potato occurring extensively in India.
